McKernan and local officials agree counties should help tackle solid waste problem

Governor John McKernan's call last Friday for a regional approach to solving solid waste problems has been greeted enthusiastically by local officials in the Bethel area. But they are still waiting to learn the specifics of the governor's proposal.

Speaking at the Bethel Inn Conference Center, at the Annual Convention of Maine Counties, Gov. McKernan said the problem of solid waste disposal poses one of the greatest threats to Maine's quality of life.

It is a problem, he said, that has grown too large and too important for towns to handle on their own.

Promising to make 1989 "The Year of Solid Waste in Maine," the governor said he would submit legislation calling for the state to provide greater technical and financial help for dealing with the problem.

The governor noted that the average Mainer generates a ton of solid waste per year.

"For environmental and economic reasons, the towns cannot handle this on their own," he said. "The state has a major role to play, and the county as well."

"We have to get a handle on this at the regional level," he told the county officials, "and I can't think of a better way to do that than through the counties. I ask all of you to be willing to work with us."

The governor's office has yet to provide specific details on what he promises will be "an integrated solid waste proposal," but he did tell the officials that it would include programs, incentives and, where necessary, disincentives. Front-end waste reduction will be an important element of the plan, he said.

"We need the same vision as when we created the bottle law," he said, describing the solid waste problem as "a test I have no interest in failing."

At a panel discussion the following day, Sam Zaitlin, of Saco, a private recycler and former chairman of the Board of Environmental Protection, said the "municipal solid waste situation is on the verge of collapse."

Mr. Zaitlin, who is also chairman of the Maine Chamber of Commerce's Environmental Committee, described the huge discrepancy between the amounts of waste being generated and the limited—and rapidly dwindling—capacity for disposing of it.

With no new disposal options on the horizon for dealing with the enormous amounts of waste being generated, he said, "I think the system is going to start to collapse within the next six months."

"But," he added, "I think good will ultimately come out of this whole mess."

Local officials heartily endorsed the governor's regional approach.

"I think it's a great idea, but I don't know anything about the details," said Greenwood Selectwoman Marie Bartlett.

Board sticks with early out plan; adds child care

Following more than two hours of discussion Monday evening, the SAD #44 Board of Directors approved, on a trial basis, an administration plan for providing child care options for elementary students released early from school on Wednesday afternoons.

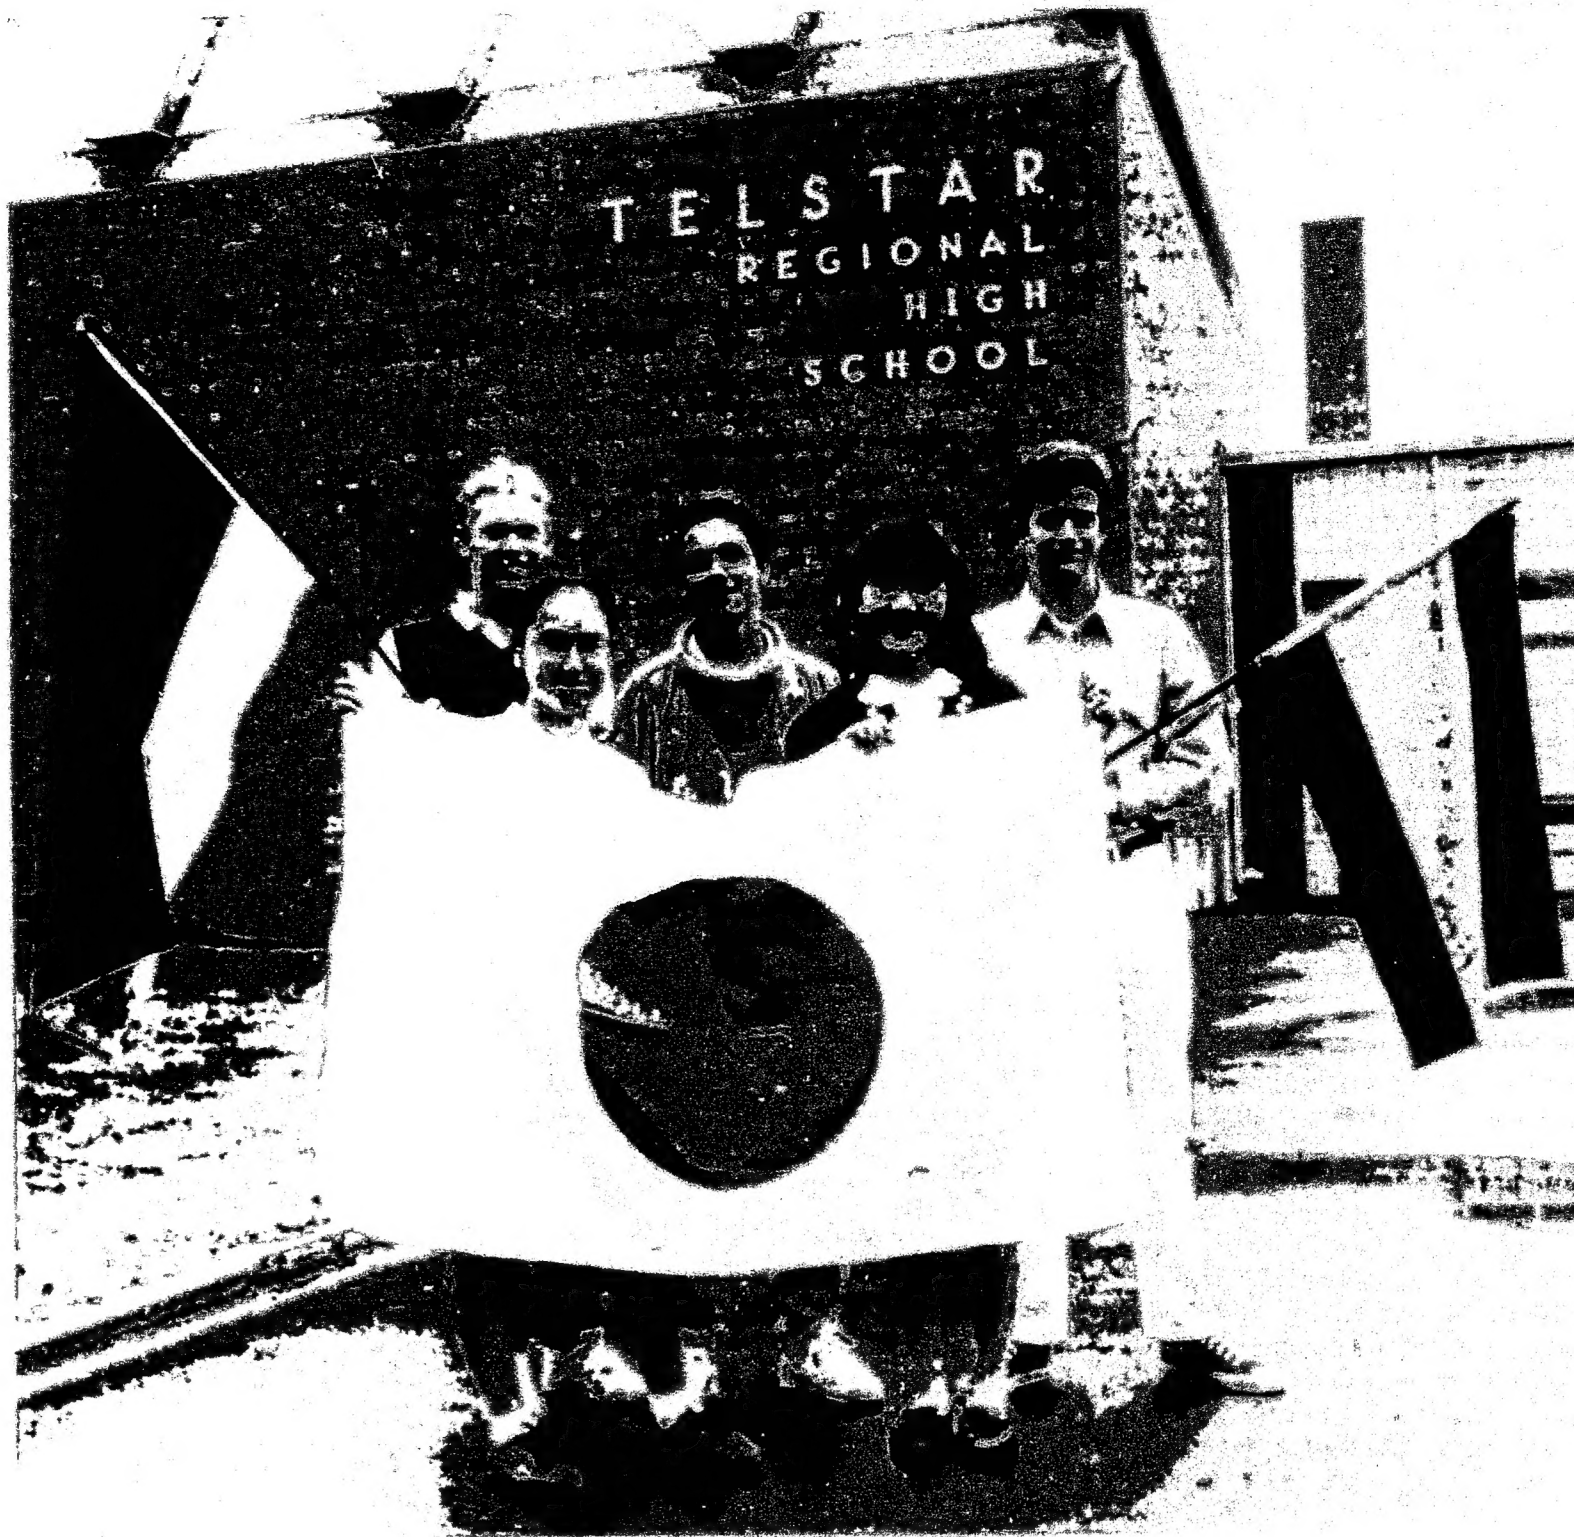

The 10-4 vote in effect re-affirmed the board's vote last spring to allow elementary school teachers to use Wednesday afternoons for professional development activities. The plan takes effect next week and will be subject to board review after nine weeks.

Prior to the vote, nine parents spoke against the early release plan, and Board Chairman Merton Brown read a critical letter from three others.

All of the speakers were sympathetic with the teachers' need for professional development time, but they argued that the time should not come from the children's classroom time. They also agreed, as did many board members, that the plan had been badly communicated to the parents.

"It was very presumptuous of us to assume that parents who might have read [about the plan in] a newspaper last spring would come in and talk to us about

Foreign students enjoy life in Maine

For the five foreign students living with host families in the Bethel area this year, one of the things that impresses them most is the price of goods, which they consider cheap.

Lobster, for example, carries a prohibitive price tag in Japan, according to Satoko Funazaki and Mariko Kamijo, both 17. At $80 per lobster, the two had never tried it before coming here.

Gregor Axler, of Germany, had also lived 18 years without getting within eating distance of a lobster. However, with host parents Robert and Margaret Hand, of Bryant Pond, he had a chance to sample one. "It was the first time in my life," he recalled. "I really enjoyed it."

Spanish exchange student Jordi Fello de la Pena and Carlos Aizpun, both 18, noticed the price tags on Levis when they went shopping with host families Tom and Melinda Remington, of Bethel, and Ray and Janice Harrington, of Greenwood, respectively. In Spain, a pair of jeans would cost $80, they said. Here, for $30, Carlos purchased two pairs of Levis and still had money left for two shirts.

Both the German student and the Spanish students commented that food was more expensive in their home countries. In Japan, the two students from there said, most things were more expensive, except such items as computers, fish, and stationery.

The transportation system of western Maine—how people get from one place to another—struck all the foreign students as quite different from what they were used to. In Japan, people commute on trains and buses, the girls said. Here, the automobile is ubiquitous. And, noted Gregor, who comes from a town near Hamburg, all the Telstar students seem to have cars.

When it comes to the education system, most of the students thought the American system was easier, and easier to get along in, than what they were used to.

Bethel's water voted best in taste test

Water from the Bethel water system was judged the best of those entered in a recent drinking water taste test. The test was sponsored by the Maine Rural Water Association as part of its annual meeting, held Sept. 22 at Waterville.

The judges for the taste test were John Kruger, of Maine's Public Health Lab, Barbara Alexander, of the Public Utilities Commission, and Joe Perham, teacher, storyteller, and well-known water drinker of West Paris. The judges awarded the Bethel water the highest score of all the waters entered; individually, each judge gave it the highest score.

A plaque honoring this achievement by the Bethel Water District was presented to Water District Acting Superintendent Robert Saunders and Asst. Superintendent Don Katlin, who were attending the meeting on behalf of the water district.

Spanish students commented that food was more expensive in their home countries. In Japan, the two students from there said, most things were more expensive, except such items as computers, fish, and stationery.

Cranky customers try to get a message to the phone company

"ring ring ring ring" This is Bryant Pond, Maine. You can't get there from here, or here from there. Please consult.

Frustrated by futile attempts to dial out on the Bryant Pond telephone system, and worried about what would happen if someone couldn't get through in an emergency, Lyn Barton, of Greenwood, has decided to petition the company for improved service.

"I'm not sure what good it will do," she said, "but I thought I had to try something."

Mrs. Barton drew up a list of complaints and optimistically left three petition sheets at the Village Store in Bryant Pond.

Overnight, the sheets filled up, front and back, with signatures and more complaints about the service provided by the Bryant Pond Telephone Company.

Mrs. Barton's petition cites the difficulty in dialing long distance ("and when you're on this system, everything is long distance," she said); the problems for businesses that must use the system; and the unreliability of the service in emergencies.

The 50 or so people who have signed the petition so far have added their own list of complaints.

"There are many other problems," one customer wrote: "1) dialing a number and not getting the right number even though you've dialed correctly, 2) people telling me that my phone isn't working (when they can't get through). All in all—terrible phone service—I have complained to the business office and they do nothing."

"This system is a public health and safety hazard," another user wrote. "What's it going to take to force an improvement. Perhaps if someone dies because they can't get an ambulance or

Army troops in war games in national forest

Elements of the 10th Mountain Div., of Fort Drum, N.Y., the 10th Special Forces Group (Airborne), of Fort Devens, Mass., and the 96th Civil Affairs Battalion, of Fort Bragg, N.C., will conduct military exercises in the White Mountain National Forest through Oct. 13, according to a military spokesman.

The exercise, called "Firestorm 88" is a counter-guerrilla operation. While the total number of troops taking part in the exercise was not disclosed, it is known that the "enemy" forces consist of some 200 men.

The 200 "guerrillas" will infiltrate the area by foot, vehicle, helicopter, and parachute drop. The "guerrillas" will be wearing civilian clothing, mixed on occasion with military camouflage. They will carry large green backpacks and rifles, and will try to hide from the local

Alumni Weekend at Gould features dedication of new athletic fields

"Try To Remember" is the theme of this year's Gould Academy Alumni Weekend, Friday, Sept. 30-Sunday, Oct. 2. All Gould Alumni are invited to come and participate in all or some of the events, beginning with class parties for reunion classes on Friday evening and continuing through Sunday's "Gould through the years" slideshow and museum tour by Dr. Stanley Howe '62 at the Bethel Historical Society.

Alumni will appreciate this summer's improvements in the campus landscape, particularly the Hatch Memorial Garden and the Anderson and Bowhay athletic fields, all of which will be dedicated on Saturday. Ordell H. "Coach" Anderson and "Scotty" Bowhay, wife of the late George Bowhay, will be on hand for the dedication of the fields.

Following the dedications, the First Annual Alumni Golf Tourney and Gould soccer and field hockey games will begin the afternoon's sporting activities. Late afternoon receptions and the alumni banquet will precede the popular Alumni Dance, featuring the 12-piece Al Corey Orchestra at the Bethel Inn Conference Center.

Tickets for the special events are available through the Alumni Office this

Deadline nears for tourism tabloid

Businesses wishing to advertise in The Citizen's annual winter tourism tabloid have only until Oct. 8 to have their ads in to The Citizen office. Organizations wishing to have events included in the calendar listings in the tabloid have until Oct. 7 to get the information to the Bethel Area Chamber of Commerce, which is compiling the calendar entries.

The colorful winter tourism tabloid will be off the press in time for distribution at the Boston Ski Show, in November, where 5,000 copies are expected to be given out. An additional 15,000 copies will be delivered to families in the Portsmouth, N.H., area as inserts in the Portsmouth Herald—the local daily paper. Further distribution will be through ski shops and YMCA's in Massachusetts, New Hampshire and Maine.

A total of 35,000 copies of the award-winning tabloids will be distributed during the winter tourism season. For further information, call The Citizen office, at 824-2444. Bethel Area Chamber of Commerce members receive a discount on their ads in the tabloid.

GOVERNOR JOHN MCKERNAN, SPEAKING AT THE BETHEL INN, told county officials from across the state last Friday that 1989 will be "the year of solid waste in Maine." Addressing the annual convention of Maine County Commissioners, the governor said that the solid waste disposal problem has become too severe for towns to handle on their own. He said he planned to call for a regional, county-based approach to the problem.

A note from the publisher

Chinese historians, both ancient and modern, were expected to assign praise and blame in the writing of history. A dynasty always began according to Chinese historians—because of the great virtue of the founder, and it always decayed because of the moral infirmities of the latter-day rulers.

Western historians, especially modern scholars, are less likely to mold historical facts to suit didactic purposes. And newspapers, which are the repositories of many of the facts from which more detailed histories are written, are usually even more cautious to keep news stories free of bias.

But, unlike history books, newspapers are expected to present biased, lively, thought-provoking views on the editorial page. While many of these views—whether from editorial writers, columnists or letter-writers—are complaints and advice, there is also the occasionally expressed opinion that a government body, or a business, or a group of citizens has done a commendable job.

Thus do we journalists hark back to the practice of the Chinese historians in making of our journals—or, at least our editorial pages—an effort to assign praise and blame.

Last week I was remiss in not including a place in the response coupon for comments of praise. I was also remiss in not putting the coupon where it could be easily clipped out. Above you will find the revised response coupon, and I hope you will take the time to fill it out and send it to The Citizen, P.O. Box 109, Bethel 04217. Or simply bring it to the office. I'll report later on the responses.

Well, who won, who lost? No, I'm not talking about the Olympics—though more about that later. Rather, I'm thinking back to Monday night's great debate between the Democratic and Republican hopefuls for the office of President of the United States of America.

"Great debate" is maybe overstating the case. Nothing earthshaking, or even very new, was said; certainly nothing very memorable. Indeed, of course, you consider the phrase "a thousand points of light"—a phrase made up by a well-paid speechwriter, which George Bush keeps repeating as if it's a mantra, or—probably worse yet—as if it has some real meaning.

All the instant experts following the debate were debating the question: "Who won?" Their conclusion: neither candidate won.

I think that was the wrong question to worry about. Remember the Nixon-Kennedy debate? Remember that people who listened to the debate on radio thought Nixon won. People who watched the debate on TV thought Kennedy won.

Since the TV audience is by far the more important audience nowadays, I think the post-debate question should have been: who lost?

I think Michael Dukakis, whose team did not prepare their candidate to look good on the tube, lost. Although his arguments were well expressed, his image was that of a bushy rather than a national leader. Buttoned up in his tight collar and tight Ivy League suit with no shoulders, using the same two or three tight hand gestures in front of the microphone, Dukakis came across as a mind with no body, with no heart.

Bush, on the other hand, for all his bumbling and rambling and half-sheepish smiles, came across as very human. I found myself empathizing with him, because certainly, if I had to get up in front of a group of people and think fast, I'd be the same way.

Whether one likes Bush's positions on how to deal with terrorists, or how to codify the nation's limited assets between guns and butter is another question. The question TV images settle is simple: who do you feel better being around? Dukakis lost.

I remember one thing Bush has often said, though he didn't mention it in the debate. He said he would never apologize for America. Whether we shoot down a civilian airliner, support outrageous dictators, allow the free importation of drugs into the country or pollute the air and oceans of the planet Earth, Bush would not apologize.

I'm not that chauvinistic. I think there are incidents and circumstances that demand nothing less than an apology. It's not a matter of being less of a patriot; it's a matter of being more of a fellow human.

At the Olympic games in Seoul, certainly the head of the U.S. delegation should have apologized to the other Olympic teams for the sorry spectacle the U.S. team put on during the opening ceremonies. The U.S. delegation—acting like pre-adolescents in need of chaperones, straggled out of the line of march, causing confusion for following delegations, and basically destroying the well-ordered ceremony.

While many of the U.S. teams and individual athletes have shown they know how to behave, as well as knowing how to perform, a number have shown mostly that they have never learned discipline while learning their sport. And, of course, without discipline, you can't really learn your sport.

A boxer not getting to his match on time and then blaming his lateness on a crowded bus; the gold medal men's medley swim team giggling all through the Star Spangled Banner; the two swimmers caught vandalizing a night club—the images of the U.S. team's immaturity are too common.

More importantly, in the long run, is that the American behavior is unleashing pent-up feelings of anti-Americanism among the host Koreans.

I would not only apologize, but I would make sure that when we send delegations abroad, whether they be Olympic teams or military units, they have been trained to act like grown-ups. And if they can't be so trained, then they must be more closely chaperoned.

Pleasant Mountain sold; night skiing planned

A Pennsylvania group of skiway owners has purchased Pleasant Mountain, in Bridgton, for $1.4 million.

As reported in last week's Citizen (in a story on the pending sale), the new owners operate the Shawnee Mountain Ski Area in Pennsylvania. They have renamed the Bridgton skiway Shawnee Peak at Pleasant Mountain.

Charles Kirkwood, one of the triumvirate that purchased the skiway, said his company plans a $1.2 million expansion and renovation project prior to opening for the 1988-89 season. Lighting for night skiing will be one of the new features for the coming season, as will be an increase in beginners' terrain, a new beginners' lift, an expanded rental shop, increased seating in the base lodge, and additional snowmaking.

Mr. Kirkwood said, "For 11 years we have been successfully operating Shawnee Mountain, our family-run ski area in the small village of Shawnee-on-Deleware, in eastern Pennsylvania where we live. For three years Bob Moyer, president of Shawnee Mountain, has researched potential properties suitable for the expansion of our operations. It came to his attention last March that Pleasant Mountain, one of the oldest and finest ski areas in Maine, was for sale."

"Pleasant Mountain's geographic location and demographics are very similar to that of Shawnee. Shawnee is in a rural setting, employs many local residents, is within an hour's drive of a large city, and caters to families, beginner skiers, and groups."

Mr. Kirkwood said this was his group's first ski venture outside Pennsylvania. Shawnee Mountain president Bob Moyer added, "We are committed to working closely with the community to maintain and improve the reputation for fine skiing that generations have enjoyed at Pleasant."

"Shawnee Peak at Pleasant Mountain will be a source of good jobs, will provide economic stability and growth in the local area, and will continue its commitment to providing the best in Maine skiing day and night."

Whereas the Bridgton town manager had been fearful that the sale of the skiway could have been held up by the unsettled matter of back taxes, he said this week he was delighted that the sale had pushed through.

The former owners owed the town $36,000 in back taxes—$19,000 on real estate on which the town had placed a lien and $67,000 on personal property, that is, equipment. The Bridgton selectmen last week, acting on a request of the then-owners, declined to abate any portion of the bill.

Apparently as part of the sale agreement, the former owners—two Massachusetts businessmen—then dropped off a check for $19,000 at the town ofice last Thursday. That left the skiway free and clear of any liens imposed by the town.

Town Manager Phil Tarr pointed out that there is still the matter of the $67,000 owed on equipment taxes (personal property) and he is not sure whom to try to collect from. A spokesperson for the new owners said the Shawnee group purchased assets only, not liabilities.

When the Stowell mill, in Bryant Pond, changed hands three years ago, the town was left with an unpaid tax bill of $20,000 on personal property.)

In any case, Town Manager Tarr said he is pleased with all he has heard of the new owners. "It looks good for Bridgton," he said. "We're excited."

Pleasant Mountain, Mt. Abram and Sunday River are the three major ski areas of western Maine. A fourth area—Evergreen—has been closed the past few seasons as no owner has been willing to put in the money to bring it back to life.

To the Editor:

It is time that the published hearsay, accusations, rumors, and speculation regarding Gordon Tire be replaced with some factual information. First of all, I am not applying for a permit to establish a "tire dump." I am currently preparing to apply to the Department of Environmental Protection (DEP) for a license to operate a "tire storage facility." At the proposed site, tires will be received, stored, stored and shipped, according to their end use. No tires will be disposed of on this site.

It is true that there was a statewide moratorium prohibiting the establishment of any new tire storage or tire disposal facilities. The moratorium allowed the DEP some time to enact into law comprehensive regulations governing tire storage and tire disposal facilities. I might add that the South Paris fire chief (John Bryant) worked closely with the DEP in formulating the new regulations.

Currently, there are many "outlaw" tire dumps in Maine. The larger ones (over one million tires) are located in Bowdoinham, Durham, and Hampden. The smaller ones are scattered throughout the state. The Bethel area has its share of smaller ones.

There is one on the Jordan property in Bethel on Grover Hill Road. The so-called "stump dump" in Greenwood has more scrap tires than stumps, in close proximity to an untended open fire—and no hint of a fire pond. The Bethel landfill has a scrap tire pile that doesn't meet DEP requirements (no water supply and no fire lanes). There is also a pile of scrap tires hidden in the woods in South Bethel, located on a fresh water aquifer recharge area, no less.

I seem to be the only person in the state interested in operating an environmentally sound, licensed tire storage facility. To accomplish this, a lot of detailed

FROM THE Bethel Town Office

The purpose of this column is to improve communications between the town government and Board of Selectmen and the residents and taxpayers of Bethel. It is hoped that as a result of this column citizens will become better informed on the activities of the town government and how their tax dollars are being spent.

Currently the selectmen and town manager and various appointed town boards and committees are dealing with a whole variety of projects, issues and problems. Some of these include the airport, sewer treatment plant upgrade and improvements and solid waste disposal.

Currently underway at the airport is the construction and paving of a new 3150-foot by 60-foot runway. The construction of the runway is the culmination of over a decade of planning and hard work by the selectmen and Airport Development Committee.

Without the enthusiasm and support of such people as Richard Davis, from whom the Town acquired the land at no cost, Dr. James Hudson, John Head, Dana Douglass and other like-minded persons, the new runway might not have become a reality.

The work is being performed by Pike Industries at a cost of $24,000 and will be completed by 11/1. Financing of the project consists of 90 percent federal grant monies, five percent state grant monies and five percent local share. Our local share is the value of the donated land and proceeds from the sale of the airport industrial park lots. The federal and local shares do not involve any tax dollars.

Due to the lack of proper wastewater treatment caused by the sewer plant design and the deteriorating condition of sewer plant equipment plus the occasional, by-passing of untreated wastewater, the town is in violation of its DEP wastewater discharge license.

As a result, the DEP has prohibited any further connections to our sewer system until such times as the sewer plant is upgraded and brought into compliance. The effective date of this order was Aug. 2. Plumbing permits and sewer connection permits issued prior to this date are grandfathered.

In order to address this situation the town is currently negotiating a consent agreement with the DEP which will put us on a time schedule for upgrading the sewer plant and for bringing us into compliance with our wastewater discharge license. This will result in the lifting of the sewer connection moratorium.

As many of us are aware, the solid waste situation has moved from being critical to being desperate—as none of the present methods of waste disposal, except for recycling, seem to be a permanent long term solution to the country's solid waste woes.

In order to address our own local solid waste dilemma, the selectmen have established a Solid Waste Committee and charged the committee with the task of studying and making recommendations on alternative solid waste disposal methods. The committee's charge also includes the establishment of a community recycling program.

In addition, the selectmen have taken action to extend the life of our landfill by prohibiting developers from depositing more than ten cubic yards of demolition or construction waste at the landfill and have directed the town manager to actively contact commercial haulers and landfill, incinerator and transfer station operators about hauling a part of our waste out of town to their facilities.

The Town of Bethel is pleased to welcome aboard two new employees. Sandy Pond has been hired as the new town office secretary/clerk. Sandy previously worked as secretary to the elementary school principal in Island Pond, Vt. She and her husband Victor have two children and live in Albany. Her husband works for the CN Railroad.

Joe Campbell has been hired as an equipment operator/laborer for the Public Works Department. Joe and his wife Cynthia reside on the Middle Intervale Road and have two children. He previously worked for the Woodstock

To the Editor:
My name is Corey Vail. I am in the Army, stationed at Fort Hood, Texas, and I have been receiving the Bethel Citizen for about six months. I have always been interested in news of my home town of Newry. I have been reading news of a lot of growth that is soon to be happening in Newry.

I have 13 months left in the Army and I will return to Maine. I had always planned to settle in Newry, but reading news of the events that are soon to happen, I have decided against this. I have read of a proposed moratorium that would give the people some time to step back and look at the situation more closely. I really thought that was a good idea; and then I read that the people of Newry rejected it! I propose a permanent moratorium.

I may not understand all the issues, but in my opinion the people of Newry made a very big mistake by defeating the moratorium. Newry has many natural resources and beautiful countryside. I may be selfish, but I am against growth in Newry, at least on the Bear River side. I don't want Newry or the Bethel area to become a North Conway situation. While I was growing up I may have complained about what a small town Newry is, but I wouldn't have it any other way.

I hope that the people of Newry enjoy the growth they are going to receive. You have succeeded in driving me away. I just wonder about the other 64 people that were in favor of the moratorium?

In short I was very disappointed that the people of Newry defeated the moratorium. If you want rapid growth and business, move to the city. Leave Newry alone!

Oxford Hills' growth attracts shoppers, but poses problems

The rapid expansion of the Oxford Hills economy, especially the service sector, is attracting more and more customers from Bethel and other SAD #44 area towns to do their shopping there. This is according to a report prepared by the Androscoggin Valley Council of Governments for the Oxford Hills Long Range Planning Steering Committee.

The retail sector has expanded so strongly, the report notes, that the traffic flow on Main Street in South Paris is now equal to that on Lisbon Street in Lewiston.

The report found the Oxford Hills business community (Norway, Paris, West Paris, Oxford, Waterford, Otisfield and Harrison) to be strong, diversified and optimistic about the future. Nearly all the businesspeople interviewed for the study expected to see expanded sales and employment over the next three years.

The major perceived restriction on further growth, the report found, was a shortage of skilled labor and professional/technical employees. The available labor force is still larger than the number of jobs in the area, but the area labor market participation rate is low and the rate of job growth is currently running twice that of labor force growth.

For retail and other service businesses, space for expansion is also hard to come by. Residents of the area strongly support economic development, the report found, but they are concerned about its effects on the quality of life in the Oxford Hills.

Population—driven by the growth in the retail sector and by spillover from Portland—is growing at roughly double the rate for the state as a whole, putting pressure on housing costs and on social services and natural resources.

The steering committee has formed subcommittees on business development, growth management, and economic opportunities for area residents. The three subcommittees will review the AVCO research and report back to the full steering committee on Dec. 8.

A public meeting will be held on Feb. 2, 1989 at which time a formal "Oxford Hills Economic Development Strategy" is scheduled to be adopted.

In order to address our own local solid waste dilemma, the selectmen have established a Solid Waste Committee and charged the committee with the task of studying and making recommendations on alternative solid waste disposal methods. The committee's charge also includes the establishment of a community recycling program.

In addition, the selectmen have taken action to extend the life of our landfill by prohibiting developers from depositing more than ten cubic yards of demolition or construction waste at the landfill and have directed the town manager to actively contact commercial haulers and landfill, incinerator and transfer station operators about hauling a part of our waste out of town to their facilities.

To the Editor:
My name is Corey Vail. I am in the Army, stationed at Fort Hood, Texas, and I have been receiving the Bethel Citizen for about six months. I have always been interested in news of my home town of Newry. I have been reading news of a lot of growth that is soon to be happening in Newry.

I have 13 months left in the Army and I will return to Maine. I had always planned to settle in Newry, but reading news of the events that are soon to happen, I have decided against this. I have read of a proposed moratorium that would give the people some time to step back and look at the situation more closely. I really thought that was a good idea; and then I read that the people of Newry rejected it! I propose a permanent moratorium.

I may not understand all the issues, but in my opinion the people of Newry made a very big mistake by defeating the moratorium. Newry has many natural resources and beautiful countryside. I may be selfish, but I am against growth in Newry, at least on the Bear River side. I don't want Newry or the Bethel area to become a North Conway situation. While I was growing up I may have complained about what a small town Newry is, but I wouldn't have it any other way.

I hope that the people of Newry enjoy the growth they are going to receive. You have succeeded in driving me away. I just wonder about the other 64 people that were in favor of the moratorium?

In short I was very disappointed that the people of Newry defeated the moratorium. If you want rapid growth and business, move to the city. Leave Newry alone!

Forests face many threats besides fire

From the American Forest Council, 415 River Street, Troy, N.Y., 12180. The wildfires in Yellowstone National Park and other western states have brought to national attention the impact nature can have on our forest. It has also ignited controversy over how to manage our national parks and wilderness lands. The current "let it burn" policy that has been in effect since 1972 is under scrutiny as a result of this year's devastating fire season.

In the northeastern states where forest fire is not as threatening, other acts of nature are. According to Jane Diley, American Forest Council's northeastern regional manager, "In the moist climate of the northeast, wildfires rarely reach the massive proportions of this year's western conflagrations. But winds, insects and disease all threaten our eastern forests. Forest management is one of the best ways to minimize the damage to these natural resources."

In Yellowstone, before the fires ever burned, over half of the trees were already dead or dying. The Mountain Pine beetle, one of the most destructive pests in western forests, had already hit the trees long before the fires ever did. The fires, fueled by the trees that had succumbed to the Pine beetle, burned hotter and faster than normal. Had the trees been harvested, less fuel would have fed the fire.

No one advocates logging in the Park, but what has happened there demonstrates what the lack of forest management can do to other forests. The same management principles that are applied in backyard gardening are applied in forest management. The unwanted, unproductive, diseased and insect infested plants are weeded out allowing for greater development of the healthier plants. A garden left unattended will provide little, if any, benefit in the end. The same is true in the forest where it may take 40 to 100 years for trees to reach harvestable size.

The amount of potential timber lost to such destructive forces as wind, fire, insects and disease is large. We can not eradicate these natural disturbances entirely, but with proper management of forests these losses can be greatly reduced.

Forest managers strive to control natural disturbances to produce the greatest forest benefit to humans—recreation, water, wildlife, wood and paper products—while maintaining the vital balance of the environment we call the forest.

Health Center offers local community clinics

As a community service the Bethel Area Health Center will again be holding flu clinics in Bethel, Woodstock and Andover.

There will be three clinics that will be held in Bethel this year on the following dates and locations: Oct. 15—Bethel Area Health Center, 9-11 a.m.; Oct. 18—United Methodist Church Senior Citizens meal site, 12-1:30 p.m.; Oct. 20—Bethel Area Health Center, 9-11 a.m.

For the convenience of our Andover neighbors a clinic will be held on Friday, Oct. 14, at the Andover Congregational Church from 1-3 p.m. In the village of Bryant Pond a clinic will be held at the Woodstock Town Office on Oct. 28 from 1-3:30.

To the Editor:

This is in response to last week's article about getting football back at Telstar. Bill Roberts and the rest of the backers need to take a hard look at a couple of facts presented. Although 83 students expressed interest in playing, Mr. Higgins estimated that [only] one-half would stick to the commitment. That, in today's age, seems to be a generous figure. One only has to go back to an article [on Leavitt High School's football program] this past week in the Lewiston Daily Sun. It mentioned that football programs are on the [decline] throughout the state because the kids seem more interested in earning money to pay for cars than playing a sport. (Wanting to work is not a quality you can fault in anyone.)

Another important fact to consider is fan support. If football did come back, the initial year may indeed be promising, but what happens when they lose games by 40 points? How many people will continue to show up? You only have to go back to Telstar basketball to see what I mean. Five years ago we made the playoffs, and home games were filled because everyone wanted to be associated with a winner. After the next year, when they again struggled, the echoes in the [mostly empty] gym were back.

There also is the question of where the home games would be played. Would they be played away?

Don't get me wrong. I was very much a football fan when it was played at Telstar. [But] it seems that there were too many "maybes," "what-ifs" and questioned commitments.

A final question I would like to ask is how many of the football backers have ever been to a soccer game and seen what that would be taking away from?

it." Board Chairman Brown said. Many parents had heard of the plan last spring, Carroll Murphy, of Bethel, said, "But a lot of us thought, 'the school board isn't going to let something as silly as this go through,' but to our surprise you did."

Mr. Murphy, and other parents, repeatedly argued that teachers should not be taking their professional development time from their pupils' classroom time. "You're doing this absurd," he said. "The school system nationwide is in shambles. How can we take this time away from them?"

"Echoing other speakers, Gail Russell said, 'As a nurse, I do my professional development when I'm not working—on weekends and days off. I cannot agree with taking that time away from students, anyone that I'd take it away from my patients.'"

Jane Rolfe, of Bethel, agreed: "I'm all for professional development, but I don't get time to take off during my job to shut my door, take the phone off the hook and say, 'Sorry, I can't see you today.'"

Three SAD #44 teachers spoke in defense of the plan. Elizabeth O'Meara, lead teacher at Crescent Park School, pointed out that "professional development" did not really describe how the time would be spent. Most of the time, she said, would be devoted to communication among the teachers, curriculum coordination and recertification and evaluation activities that the state has mandated but has provided neither time nor money for.

"Nurses can talk to other nurses in the coffee room," she said, "but teachers hardly have the time to do that." Marguerite Graham, of Bethel, stressing that she was speaking as a parent/citizen, she is also the volunteer coordinator of the Broadford writing project, praised the elementary teachers for the time they have put into developing the program.

"I know they're really excited about it," she said. "So much energy has gone into it that it deserves a try."

But Bill Cousins, a math teacher at Gould Academy, sided with the parents. "If the time for an individual teacher's professional advancement, I don't think this would see that they need Wednesday afternoons off. If it's for communication and the exchange of ideas, why, heaven's sake, do they need every Wednesday afternoon off?"

Parent concern over child care had occasioned the board's reconsideration of the early release program, but the issue was mentioned only in passing by the parents at Monday evening's meeting.

The district's three elementary school principals outlined the plan proposed by the administration for taking care of children who had no alternative care on Wednesday afternoon.

The plan, which involves sites in each community and supervision by substitute teachers, is designed to accommodate up to 150 children, roughly 25 percent of the pupils to be released early.

Some of the parents present objected to the fact that places in the child care program are on a first-come, first-served basis, but Woodstock School Principal David Murphy noted that at this point the administration has no idea how many children might apply for the program. If more places are needed, he said, the administration would try to find a way to accommodate them.

Superintendent Dewane Craig cautioned, however, that it might not be possible to find the money to cover the cost of a much larger child care program. The present program is expected to cost the district approximately $13,000, he said, about half of which would be offset by parent contributions.

The board eventually voted to approve the child care program, but a number of directors acknowledged that they realized there were strong feelings in the audience and in the community against the early release policy.

Mr. Murphy, and other parents, repeatedly argued that teachers should not be taking their professional development time from their pupils' classroom time. "You doing this is absurd," he said. "The school system nationwide is in a shambles. How can we take this time away from them?"

But Bill Cousins, a math teacher at Gould Academy, sided with the parents. "If the time is for an individual teacher's professional development, I don't see how it can be used to help the whole school."

Following the vote, Mr. Murphy said he intended to start a petition to eliminate the early release policy entirely.

In other matters Monday evening, Kim Zykwicz, of Andover, complained to the board that her daughter Christina, a 3rd-grader at the Andover Elementary School, has repeatedly been struck by a boy in her class.

"The situation has been going on and getting worse," she said, "and we don't want her abused any more."

Ms. Zykwicz said she was dissatisfied by the actions taken to correct the situation, and with the administration's response to her concerns.

Superintendent Craig said: "I do believe your child is in a safe educational environment at that school."

Despite the administration's assurances, Chairman Brown said: "This is obviously something that needs to be discussed."

The board voted to take the matter up in executive session at its next meeting. The board also voted to postpone indefinitely a discussion requested by Gail Sysko, of Newry, of the district's assessment formula. Superintendent Craig said Mrs. Sysko, (who could not attend Monday's meeting) had told him she didn't feel there was sufficient support on the board or among the selectmen in SAD #4 towns to pursue changes in the assessment formula at this time.

In personnel matters, the board voted to approve the following extra-curricular appointments. At the high school: Elizabeth LaVallee and Thomas Remington as Alpine ski co-coaches, Timothy Kersey as boys' track coach, Justin Kersey as girls' track coach, James Lunney as head softball coach, Barbara Russell as assistant softball coach, and Steve Keane as junior class advisor.

At the middle school: Timothy Brooks as assistant girls' basketball coach, James Fiske as assistant boys' basketball coach, and Daniel Hannon as softball coach.

In addition, June Inman and Melinda Remington were approved as substitute personnel, and Ruth Salade as part-time middle school Chapter 1 teacher.

In addition to Mrs. Sysko, board members Marjorie Osgood, also of Newry, and Richard Grandall, of Bethel, did not attend Monday evening's meeting.

Mr. Foster, however, joined Dr. Howe

Home weatherization course offered through Adult Education

The SAD #4 Adult Education program, in cooperation with the Maine Office of Energy Resources, will run a six hour Home Weatherization workshop program. The statewide Weatherize Homes in Maine (WHIME) program will be run at Telstar High School on Oct. 4 and 11 from 6:30-9:30. After completion of the six hour training course, the Office of Energy Resources will award a $75 materials voucher to each participating household.

According to Harvey DeVane, Director of the Office of Energy Resources, the program has been conducted in more than 35 communities across the state and has served over 1,500 Maine residents in the last four months. "Participants have used the vouchers to purchase weatherization materials at local building supply and hardware stores," said DeVane. "By using information gained at the workshop sessions and applying materials supplied by the voucher, participants should see measurable change in the winter comfort of their homes."

Nearly 50 adult education programs participated in the delivery of WHIME programs from January through May of 1988 and another round of programs will be run in the fall. "Adult education programs have proven to be an excellent vehicle for the delivery of the programs," DeVane said. "These educators are in touch with their communities, know how to get information out to people in their towns and do a fine job presenting this program."

According to Cathy Newell the SAD #4 Adult Education will offer the program to up to 100 participants. The course will be taught by Tim O'Connor who has extensive experience in the home construction and weatherization field. Because of the limited number of slots available, preregistration is required. The SAD #4 Adult Education office can be reached by calling 824-2780.

and eight other board members in voting to approve the program. Jeri Brooks, Merton Brown, Cheryl Elliot, all of Bethel, and Rex Thurston, of Andover, voted against it.

Spanish student Jordi said, "The teacher here is like a friend. In Spain he's very distant." And all the students seemed to like this aspect of the American system. They also liked the idea that American students could pick and choose among courses, instead of everyone taking the same courses.

Possibly the easy relationship between students and teachers here makes for better school spirit. The foreign students all said there was much more spirit at Telstar than at their own schools.

"My host brother said he was looking forward to school," said Gregor. "I couldn't believe it. [In Germany] everyone hates it."

The stress on interscholastic sports here may also be a factor in promoting school spirit, the students indicated, as well as being a way of developing easy friendships. The three boys are all on the soccer team, while Mariko is on the cross-country team.

English, who came here to improve his English, said he was delighted to have arrived in a presidential election year. He said he was very interested to see what criteria voters use in their presidential preferences. He said it seems that what is most important is a pretty smile.

Gregor will be a senior when he returns to Germany. Both Carlos and Jordi have already graduated high school. Satoko and Mariko will be juniors when they return to their own schools. All five students will get no credit for their year at Telstar, but they will get a wealth of experiences.

population as well as from the troops trying to find them. Anyone spotting a "guerrilla" is urged to contact the 10th Mountain Division command post, at the Bog Brook training area, telephone 836-3630.

LT. Bruce Baker, of the 96th Civil Affairs Battalion, said, "For safety sake we want hunters to be aware that soldiers will be in the White Mountain area. The 96th is also trying to notify campers and hikers, in addition to hunters and local populace, of the presence of troops in the mountains."

The civil affairs battalion has put up "Wanted" posters at local post offices to alert the local populace to the threat of "guerrillas" in the area.

Residents on the Bog Road, in Gilead, have had ringside seats this week for some of the military exercises. From their living rooms they have been able to watch troops dropping into the fields from helicopters, by day and night.

EXCHANGE STUDENTS

Mary Gillies, in Bethel, and Mariko, who is staying with Richard and Barbara Lewis, in West Bethel, both said they have to study much harder when they're attending school at home. (For Satoko, this means an elite, college-prep school near Tokyo; for Mariko, it means a girls school in Yokohama.) Satoko, in fact, said she studies until late at night each night, getting only five hours sleep.

The Japanese students and the German student normally have only six weeks of summer vacation. In addition, they go to school six days a week, including Saturdays. Only the Spanish students, both of whom hail from Barcelona, have a school calendar similar to what American students have.

All the students said they were ahead of their American counterparts in advanced math, since they all had to take three years of algebra, whether or not they intend to go to college.

The students noted the difference in class sizes at Telstar and at their home schools. In Spain, the norm is 35-45 students per class, said Jordi and Carlos; 40-50 in Japan, said Mariko and Satoko. In Germany, said Gregor, there were 25-30 students in the lower grades of high school, but for the better students who stayed for the advanced grades, class size dropped to 10-15.

School discipline was a matter that all the foreign students said was different here and abroad. "The rules are quite strict here," according to Carlos and Jordi. In their Barcelona schools, students could have beer or wine with lunch if they so desired. In Germany, said Gregor, students are assumed to be responsible individuals and are allowed to do what they want without a lot of rules. All the students were amazed that they are only given three minutes to change classes at Telstar.

Only the Japanese students thought Telstar had easier discipline than their home schools, where they have to wear uniforms each day.

Spanish student Jordi said, "The teacher here is like a friend. In Spain he's very distant." And all the students seemed to like this aspect of the American system. They also liked the idea that American students could pick and choose among courses, instead of everyone taking the same courses.

Possibly the easy relationship between students and teachers here makes for better school spirit. The foreign students all said there was much more spirit at Telstar than at their own schools.

"My host brother said he was looking forward to school," said Gregor. "I couldn't believe it. [In Germany] everyone hates it."

The stress on interscholastic sports here may also be a factor in promoting school spirit, the students indicated, as well as being a way of developing easy friendships. The three boys are all on the soccer team, while Mariko is on the cross-country team.

English, who came here to improve his English, said he was delighted to have arrived in a presidential election year. He said he was very interested to see what criteria voters use in their presidential preferences. He said it seems that what is most important is a pretty smile.

Gregor will be a senior when he returns to Germany. Both Carlos and Jordi have already graduated high school. Satoko and Mariko will be juniors when they return to their own schools. All five students will get no credit for their year at Telstar, but they will get a wealth of experiences.

population as well as from the troops trying to find them. Anyone spotting a "guerrilla" is urged to contact the 10th Mountain Division command post, at the Bog Brook training area, telephone 836-3630.

LT. Bruce Baker, of the 96th Civil Affairs Battalion, said, "For safety sake we want hunters to be aware that soldiers will be in the White Mountain area. The 96th is also trying to notify campers and hikers, in addition to hunters and local populace, of the presence of troops in the mountains."

The civil affairs battalion has put up "Wanted" posters at local post offices to alert the local populace to the threat of "guerrillas" in the area.

Residents on the Bog Road, in Gilead, have had ringside seats this week for some of the military exercises. From their living rooms they have been able to watch troops dropping into the fields from helicopters, by day and night.

FRANKLIN GRANGE

Franklin Grange met Monday night with 20 members from Franklin Grange and eight visitors present, which made a total of 28 present.

The legislative committee and CWA reported. We had honored guests present: Linda and Randy Jacks, who are committee members of the Task Force on the future of the Granges in Maine. They were escorted to the Master Station.

The following program was presented: The welcome song was sung to open the Grange program. An opening poem was read. Harry Boyer, Loretta Hall and Richard Felt put on the skit, "It's a small world through love." This they did at Rindge, N.H. Lecturers New England Conference. Harry sang love songs and got Loretta away from Richard. It was very humorous.

Randy Jack talked on Grange work and then turned it over to Linda. They explained what the Task Force is all about. Questions were asked from the floor. Olive Rickett and Olive Davis told stories to lighten up the meeting. We held the mystery march and the orchestra made music. Loretta Hall won a jar of tomato relish on the guessing of beans in a jar which had been passed around the room during the program. We closed by singing "God be with you." Refreshments were served after the closing of the Grange.

Our next meeting will honor the Golden Sheaf members. These 50-year members will hold the chairs. That will be held on Oct. 3.

Oct. 4, Oxford Pomona will meet with us. A 6:30 supper will be served before the meeting. The fifth degree will be given that night. Here's a chance to take your fifth degree if you would like to come see us.

West Bethel

By CONSTANCE BROADBENT

Dear Tom,

We were quite impressed with your installation ceremony on last Saturday as commander of American Legion Post #156, Waltham, Mass. It was a pleasure to be there with the rest of the family and to hear you make a public affirmation of a renewed sense of patriotism. That seems to be spreading throughout the land.

Weren't you surprised to learn that my new home town is well known to a number of your associates? After you introduced me as your sister from "a far away village called West Bethel, somewhere in Maine," I talked with at least a half dozen guests who have some kind of Bethel connection! As a result, I bring back greetings to Jeri Brooks from Past National Commander, John T. (Jake) Comer. It seems that Jake and his entourage came to Bethel last year for Jeri's homecoming as National Vice President, Eastern Division of the Legion Auxiliary. And to Town Clerk, Merton Brown, I bring a "hello" from my high school classmate and Waltham City Clerk, Peter Koutoujian. Pete tells me that he and Merton have met at many a (city/town) clerk's convention. So, how's that for the "small world" department?

Now, if you want proof that patriotism is alive and well in Maine, get this. Our friend and neighbor, Rupert Grover, has just finished two 25 foot flagpoles of homegrown fir as birthday gifts to his sister, Verna Thayer, of Mason, and his son, Rupert Jr., of Norway. (Maine, that is). Verna, brother Richard Grover and nephew Dan Grover watched with pride as the colors were hoisted for the first time. Her husband, Dewey, recorded the ceremony for posterity. Meanwhile, in Norway, Rupert Jr. has set his mast in place, sans flag. That minor detail is being ironed out, even as we speak. Caution: Should there be a yard sale in Mason offering an "incomplete" croquet set, look to the top of Verna's flagpole for a clue!

While we were in Massachusetts for your installation, Tom, the West Bethel Union Church ran yet another successful public supper. Nancy Grover, president of the Ladies Chapel Aid, reports that a crowd of about 85 to 90 enjoyed the good home cooking and left smiling and satiated. You'll have to try to schedule a visit around a West Bethel public supper, church or grange, for a real Yankee culinary experience! The local grange will be doing a corned beef dinner on Oct.

Speaking of granges, Pleasant Valley Grange members wound up the third in a series of cooperative meetings with Rumford Grange and Bear River Grange in Newry on Saturday evening. The three groups have met once at each hall to share entree and experiences. Each group assumed one of the evening's responsibilities in an effort to keep in touch and to get to know each other better. We of the West Bethel Grange have enjoyed these "Three Point Meetings" with their interaction and camaraderie.

There never seems to be a shortage of those accommodations around here, Tom. People welcome guests frequently, they travel, they exchange dooryard visits. (That's when I stop by to say hello to you without expecting to come in—just a short visit on my way to or toward). Just last week Raymond and Helen Saunders made a day trip to Haverhill, N.H., with Donald and Joyce Bennett, to visit Helen and Donald's aunt, Evelyn Armburg. And Donald and Elsie Aylward were off for a weekend in Middletown, Conn. They were there to help daughter, Eileen, celebrate her 19th birthday. Alanson and Fannie Cummings and Cleveland and Catherine Lovejoy made a recent day trip to Togus for Alanson's semiannual checkup with his favorite physician, affectionately known as Dr. Longfinger. As a nonagenarian and veteran of both world wars, Alanson definitely has his sense of humor intact! The Cummings family also recently hosted Mr. and Mrs. Richard Fleming, of Ashville, N.C., and Mr. and Mrs. Elmer Waterhouse, of South Woodstock. During the full fledged visit with the Cummings, the folks paid a dooryard call to the Lovejoys (remember the difference? There will be a quiz at the end of this lesson).

Meanwhile, back at the Maine-ger, we were happy to accommodate Howard and Helen Corliss, of Gloucester, Mass.

The Greenwood Fire Department Auxiliary was pleased to serve 51 people at the Western Maine Firemen's Association supper, Monday, Sept. 12, and 57 senior citizens at the dinner on Wednesday, Sept. 14. They netted approximately $375 on the two fundraisers.

The Greenwood Fire Department held a training session with the Woodstock Fire Department Tuesday, Sept. 13. Brent and Barbara Swan returned home to Chiefland, Fla., after spending last week with his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Hugh (Cubby) Swan.

Jimmy Johnson and Ronnie Smith, of West Greenwood, have completed their work at Gilbert Manufacturing Co. and have taken positions elsewhere. Don Alyward, of Mason, also left to go to work for a construction company. Roger Twichell has retired and is building a place in East Bethel.

Your correspondent spent last week (Sept. 9 and 10) at Nashua, N.H., at the Assemblies of God Women's Retreat. There were 670 women there from the Northern New England District (Maine, New Hampshire and Vermont). We (Marilyn Van Horn, Dot Chopping and I) left early Friday morning, stopped in Gorham to have breakfast and still made Nashua in about four hours. We stayed at the Sheraton Lera which looks like an immense castle. Probably more seasoned travelers than I am not surprised to be met by pages dressed in red medieval costumes complete with breeches, black hose and white neck ruffles, but it was something out of my sphere of experience! We had Betty Maltz for a speaker and following the afternoon session I got a chance to visit my cousin, Carol Flint Hatch, and her 16 year old son, Michael, who live in nearby Hollis, N.H., for about an hour before the banquet. Then it was back to another session before returning. In the morning we were served a lunch and then the last session lasted until about noon. It may be called a retreat but it is hardly the kind one pictures where one goes to get rested. It is more like a seminar. We took it easy on the way home because we were all tired and had to take turns driving but we got to Locke Mills safely at 5:30 p.m. Saturday wondering where all the time went to that seemed to loom so long on Friday morning!

The Greenwood Historical Society will meet at 7:30 p.m. Wednesday, Oct. 5, at their building on Main Street.

The Greenwood Fire Department will meet at 7 p.m. Wednesday, Oct. 5, at the Fire Station.

Our sincerest sympathy goes to the families of Raymond Mills and Patricia Astbury. Raymond was the brother of Lee Mills and Patricia the sister of Margaret Mills. Blaine Mills was a bearer at both services: Patricia's on Monday in Gardiner and Raymond's on Tuesday in Bethel. It has been a difficult time for the Mills' family. Lee Mills' brother, Clayton, is in the hospital convalescing from an operation and Mary Mills' sister, Vi Churchill, is in Central Maine Medical Center for treatment and therapy. One bright spot is that grandson, Dustin, celebrated his 11th birthday on Thursday.

Lorraine Mills and Lillian Herrick visited Thelma Merrill, Monday evening at Ledgeview Memorial Home and then attended a dispatchers' meeting at the Tri-Town Ambulance Barn.

Charlotte Cole and Helen Chase went to Ledgeview, Friday where Charlotte played harmonica and guitar. Then they went to Dora and Elmer Dingley's where they had supper and then played cards.

John and Lorraine Mills were among those attending Raymond Mills' funeral in Bethel, Tuesday. Then they went to Ledgeview where John visited with Joe Roderick and Lorraine with Thelma Merrill.

Vera Cross and Helen Chase were dinner guests of Charlotte Cole, Thursday. After dinner they went to Peggy Blake's on High Street in South Paris where they joined Viva Whitman, Russell Yates, Charlotte Sennett, of East Andover, Laura Hutchins, of East Andover, with her accordion, and Eva Sandborn, of Woodstock, N.H., with her fiddle, and they all had a hootenanny.

Edith Rowe, Eva Perry, Margery Swan, Ken and Barbara Wakefield and Marion Swan were among those attending the funeral.

Love to all, C.B.

A breezy but sunny morning as I sit down to write. However, the weather forecast doesn't sound as good as I wish it did. More rain coming they say. We have had quite a lot recently and doesn't seem as though we need more but guess we will have to put up with whatever we get. As long as the hurricanes stay away from us it won't be so bad. The destruction that Hurricane Gilbert has given is so terrible and nothing one can do to keep such things from happening. That is what is so sad.

Last Thursday, Laura Hutchins, from East Andover, came to get cukes that Russell had to give away. She and a friend wanted more for making pickles. They should have had enough to keep them out of mischief for a little while as she took about four bushel of them home with her. We are still eating cucumbers from the garden as we have been very lucky and haven't gotten a frost as yet. We are sheltered by woods nearby and high enough up so we don't get frosts as soon as some do, for which we are thankful.

Eva Swanson, from Woodsville, N.H., came in the afternoon to spend a little time with Peggy. They were friends when they both worked at the Hillsboro Club in Florida.

In the evening, Russell, Peggy, Eva and I all went to the fair to look around. Not as much doing as when the fair started several years ago. It was in the late afternoon when we got there and no more going or anything going on up at that end of the fairgrounds other than a few people coming and going to see the exhibits. We looked around and then went to the other end of the fairgrounds to find my grandson, Toby Whitman. He was to be showing his steer at 5:30 and wanted to let him know we were there. We watched the pig scramble at 5 and enjoyed watching the youngsters hurry around to try to catch a pig. I pitied the poor pigs the way they got their legs pulled in all directions to hold onto them. No wonder they squeal and resist. Anyway, they were soon all caught and the fun was over. I went to the showing ring to see the steers. It was getting cold all the time and even though we had put on heavy clothing to keep warm, we sure felt the cold. We wondered about the small children who weren't as warmly dressed as we were. Some of them seemed cold, too. No place for babies, in my opinion, when it is so cold. Anyway, we watched the showing of the beef steers and when it was all over, we got ready and came home to a warm house and warm food to make us feel better. Had a good time though.

Friday seemed to be a day for accidents in Norway. I had gone to town in the forenoon but had to go again in the afternoon to see two and Tucker Street into Shop 'N' to the doctor. I don't know what's serious. A gentle waiting and at Market Street lady out in the store next door because of a enough to have a half. I didn't do sew, read, work done. the day. For dance in the friends came. Got things and then Lewiston ab had to finish. I went down teach croch there. I finish had ready to know how to busy proof. Went to the noon and a Wynona had Shedd. It was getting cold all the time and even though we had put on heavy clothing to keep warm, we sure felt the cold. We wondered about the small children who weren't as warmly dressed as we were. Some of them seemed cold, too. No place for babies, in my opinion, when it is so cold. Anyway, we watched the showing of the best steers and when it was all over, we got ready and came home to a warm house and warm food to make us feel better. Had a good time though.

Friday seemed to be a day for accidents in Norway. I had gone to town in the forenoon but had to go again in the afternoon to see the chiropractor. As I was going down from Elm Hill road, I saw two ambulances in the road by Tucker Street and the driveway leading into Shop 'N Save, so went around to get to the doctor's office. Others came in who knew more about the accident which involved some school kids and another party. I don't know the details but guess they weren't seriously hurt or at least I hope not. A gentleman came in while I was waiting and said there was an accident at Market Square in South Paris and a lady out in the parking lot in back of the store next door had an asthma attack and fell and they thought had a broken ankle because of the fall. I thought that was enough to happen in a matter of an hour and a half. Hope all are doing okay.

I didn't do too much on Saturday, but sew, read, knit, crochet and get house work done. That kept me busy most of the day. Peggy and Eva went to the dance in the evening. Some of Peggy's friends came down and went with them. Got things started for lunch on Sunday and then Michael came for me to go to Lewiston about 10:45. Russell and Peggy had to finish getting the lunch for them. I went down to stay over night and help teach crocheting the next day. While there, I finished a sweater that Wynona had ready to put together and didn't know how to go about doing it. She was busy proofreading on a job she has.

Went to the crocheting class Monday forenoon and came home afterward as Wynona had had an appointment with Dr. Shedd. Had had a bad night so went to rest in the afternoon, which I did. Russell, Peggy and Eva went to Grange, but this old gal stayed home and went to bed early to catch up on some much needed rest.

Did some sewing on Tuesday morning and had lunch about ready when in came Myrna and Bernard White from Auburn. Lucky I had plenty for lunch with us. I always enjoy their company and that day was no exception. In the late afternoon I made Russell one of his favorite casseroles with zucchini and whatever veggies I could find that were leftover. No matter what I use it always tastes good and he enjoys it. In the evening Peggy and Eva came down and we played the card game of 63. Eva had never played it before but had fun learning.

Went to see Dr. Jealous on Wednesday morning and made a couple of stops in town on the way home. After lunch, Peggy and Eva went to Hungry Hollow to visit Mary Smith and then took her for a ride up to the North Paris area. According to what Peggy said they traveled several of the roadways there even though they didn't know just where they

Workshop for women

Workshop for women: "Choosing our preferred future" is the title of a weekend seminar sponsored by the SAD #4 Adult and Community Education program. The seminar will be held on Friday, Oct. 7, and Saturday, Oct. 8, and will have Edith Seashore and Mary Lou Maisel as facilitators. In describing the seminar, the facilitators commented that, "In today's world, we as women have resources that are different and unique. This workshop is an opportunity to explore these resources and identify barriers that challenge us. We will look at ways to build the structures and agendas that will strengthen our families, our workplaces and our communities." Edith Seashore and Mary Lou Maisel are members of National Training Labs (NTL) who, in addition to serving as NTL faculty members, maintain their own consulting practices working with corporations and organizations. In 1985, they facilitated a workshop for Bethel area women. Edith Seashore, based in Washington, D.C., is a former president of NTL and has been coming to Bethel with NTL for many years. Mary Lou Maisel is from Maine and has recently been involved with local NTL projects involving students at Gould Academy and Telstar High School. The workshop will meet from 9-11 a.m. on Friday, Oct. 7, and 9-11 a.m. on Saturday, Oct. 8, at the Bingham House on Broad Street in Bethel. Advance registration is required and those interested are asked to call the SAD #4 Adult and Community Education officer, 824-2730. The fee of $35 includes lunch on Saturday.

Northwest Bethel

By CLARICE GIBSON

We have now entered into our fall season and the news isn't too much as people are harvesting and butting up for the winter. As most places have gotten frost, the vegetables have to be picked, sorted and either canned or stored for winter. We have had quite a few rainy days in between some "glad to be alive" days. The trees are coming out in their beautiful fall colors before they undress for the long winter. Now is the time also to start winterizing the house and bring out the winter clothing. During those long days this summer we were looking forward to the cooler weather, just like those subfreezing days in the winter we are looking forward to spring.

Each Dan Hannon is busy painting his house. The Shaw family went to the field to a sheet shoot. Dr. Lennie Simpson, Jim, came Saturday to help with the apples. Sunday the apples came to help.

Monday Evelyn Hilborn and I rode up to the N.H. to do shopping and business. Tuesday Kathie Hanscom had a morning visit and Wednesday Marjorie Tucker, of Readfield, and Holden, of Norway, spent some time with us. We went to Readfield to get Marjorie's car. Our daughter, Kim Wells-Gibson, also stopped.

Our daughter, Debbie, is in to wait for Debbie's appointment with Dr. Mason. Debbie had the car to be in a bike accident in the town of Bethel. Dr. Mason says he can save it as he has put stitches in it and it seems to be taking hold. The car also had to have stitches in her head. The Bethels have moved from New Bethel to Maine permanently in East Bethel. They have been coming here for many years and vacations for many years.

Sept. 16 Evelyn Hilborn went with the Coffin, of West Paris, Bertha and Frances. They were shopping and lunch. Sunday, Sept. 18 she went with Frances Farmington to the South Paris Fair. Evelyn wishes to thank her friends who helped out for ten days while her car was out of commission.

Sept. 18 Sharon Kumball, of Waterford, and Joan Coolidge to Rumford. Saturday and Sunday afternoon Sylvia went to the home of Norma Jodrey's in the year in Rebecca Lodge. Monday, Sept. 19, Margaret Belanger and Marie Brown came to visit Sylvia. Marie Brown has built a new floor on her house.

Sept. 19, Allen MacDougall and cousin, Arthur MacDougall, of Rumford, left Sept. 11 for the Edward Island to visit relatives and friends. They returned Sept. 17. Mr. Frank Aslward had dinner Monday, Sept. 19, with Charles, Ruth and Mary.

Sept. 19, Nathan and Seth Howe, sons of Robert and Linda Howe, have started going to Sunday school at the Methodist Church.

Betsy, Wise, Deedee, Pat and Jo, of South Carolina, were at Betsy's parents, Frank and Ida Chapman, the weekend of Sept. 16. They picked up Deedee's son, Allen Smith, who had been visiting relatives for two weeks, to take home.

Mary (Chapman) and son, Errol Vincent Brown, have moved back to Chapman Hill from Lewiston.

We expect we will be seeing a lot of traffic going by Saturday on the river side of the house as the Fall Foliage Festival will be Oct. 1.

THE CALM BEFORE THE STORMS—Enjoying the warm sun of early fall, cows relax in the field across from Baker's Bed and Breakfast on the Sunday River Road, in Newry. This spell of autumn tranquility is all too brief. Early leaf peepers have already been spotted in the area, and soon after they're gone, snow and skiers will cover the Sunday River Skiway trails in the background.

Sunday River officials are hoping to be able to open some trails by early November, but for now even the forbidding new "White Heat" trail (to the far left) looks from the distance like a comfortable cow path.

Violet Swain and Bertha Summerton, of Milo, left Sept. 26 for a week in San Diego, Calif. They will be attending an International "1918" Convention. Mrs. Swain is secretary of the Maine Chapter.

Sept. 10 Sheryl Simmons wed Mike Hosington in Lebanon, N.H. Attending the wedding from Andover were the brides father, Leon Simmons, her grandparents, Merton and Eda Perkins, Phyllis Spaulding and Alex and Kathy LeGault.

Tuesday, Oct. 4, is Red Cross Blood Drive. Our sympathy goes to Leon Simmons as his stepfather, Fletcher Alley, of Jonesport, passed away Sept. 16. Mr. Alley was once a principal at Andover High.

Sept. 16 Butch Glover, Jeff Wardwell and Wayne Wardwell all gathered at Jeff's home in Concord, N.H. to start a trip to Dover, Delaware. They spent the weekend at the Delaware 500 Race. They arrived back home early Monday morning loaded with souvenirs.

The horns in this area are terrible this year. I found three in my yard this summer. As soon as you destroy one nest they build another. I used a chemical to spray on and then ran like mad. Gordon Miller and Colby Roberts like to use the old fashioned method of fire and water, fire to burn the nest and water to hose the house down.

Sept. 16 Tina Farrington is our choir director with Edna White as our pianist. During the worship hour all children exit for junior church with Mrs. Grover. Last Friday this group went bowling for their fun time.

Gertrude Hutchins, Florence Hall, Elizabeth Sennett and Flora Whitten enjoyed Grandmother's Day at Andover Elementary School on Friday.

There were no bus riders to Rumford on Wednesday.

Mr. Mosher, son of the late Eleanor Sweet Mosher, called on Anne Fox. Florence Hall, Gertrude Hutchins and Flora Whitten shopped in Rumford on Wednesday.

Anne Fox attended Ladies Aid and Historical meetings on Wednesday.

Louise Powell, of Hale, visited her mother, Alma Hewey, recently.

Thought of the day: Try to do to others as you would have them do to you, and do not be discouraged if they fail sometimes. It is much better that they should fail than that you should. Charles Dickens.

Calvary Congregational Church Meditation: "Blessed is the man whom thou chooseth." Psalm 65:4.

Call to worship: "Blessed redeemer." During missionary moments Rev. Donald Grover shared several letters.

Rev. Donald Grover's message: "Grieve not the Holy Spirit." Eph. 4:17-31.

More courses announced for adult ed schedule

The SAD #44 Adult and Community Education program will begin several courses and programs during the week of Oct. 3, to supplement the many activities that begin this week.

This program should benefit those interested in construction and restoration, realtors and those interested in local history.

Several Ellingswood cousins from West Paris and around visited with Margaret Mitchell recently.

Non Jordan is back in his home here after a long absence.

The bear hunters are quite active. The hunters can be heard on the hills as they follow a scent.

Steve French has accepted a job at the Husams Hotel running machinery at the ski slopes.

Sept. 14 ladies gathered at the Yarnell property for the first class in a series of four on landscaping sponsored by SAD #44 Adult Education program. I think this is a first for Upton.

Hance Goodrum is offering a reward for the return of his dog. The dog is a male, part Lab, with a collar.

Ray Bernier finished a stonewall building job in Massachusetts and is staying a few days at his home here.

We had light frosts two nights followed by lots of clear, warm weather. The hills are their colorful best and the sunny days give us a fine opportunity to enjoy the scenery.

Margaret Mitchell went to South Paris for a physical checkup.

The Gays returned home to South Paris during the wee morning hours as they received news of the death of Glena Gay's uncle.

A Biblical passage instructing women to submit to their husbands has been troublesome to many of us as it could put women in a mindless demeaning role, depending on the subject. Recently a teacher said the original Hebrew word is more correctly translated adjust. This is an easier concept to live with as it is feminine nature to adjust and wives can keep and use their independence, intelligence and capabilities while adjusting. Perhaps many who believed and lived thus can enjoy having the submit concept eradicated. No need of the drastic women's lib.

Girl Scouts raising cash for trip to Wyoming

The Girl Scouts in Cadette Troop #712 are planning a trip to Wyoming in the summer of 1989. They will be going to National Center West, the only national Girl Scout camping center.

National Center West offers many activities, such as archaeology, geology, backpacking, nature study, fishing, crafts, hiking and photography for girls throughout the world. Troop 712 is trying to raise money for this expedition.

The first money-raiser will have the girls doing odd jobs for people through the month of October. They will rake lawns, wash windows, walk dogs, babysit, and anything else you have that needs doing. For information and reservations, call Jennie, 824-3326. If there is no answer, call Meredith, 824-3365, (after Oct. 2).

The girls will also have other fundraisers later on. The troop would appreciate the support of the community.

Volunteers adding new programs at Telstar M.S.

Linda Morgan and Susan Wight, volunteer coordinators for the 5th-grade team, met last Wednesday—along with Vicki Rackliffe, representing the Makeusue Arts Council—to develop and improve the student activity program at the middle school.

Linda Davis, Wayne Howe, Debra Piccirillo and Sally Hannon listened and shared ideas as Mrs. Morgan presented a variety of suggestions.

The first program includes what was described as "holiday specials." Community members and foreign exchange students will be invited to work in small groups, sharing experiences about holiday customs and life in other countries.

The second program would add to the number of choices for students during the activity period. Volunteers would share their special interest areas and hobbies with youngsters.

The third program would supplement the regular science curriculum in the spring with a series of nature studies offered by parents and state agencies. Mini-field trips and small group discussions are planned for students.

Career educational opportunities will be increased as students are involved in the supplying of area specialties and businesses. Student interviews will give students a chance to improve communication skills.

Mrs. Rackliffe has organized a very special musical program and concert for the entire middle school, to be followed by a workshop for 6th-grade students. The event is planned for Oct. 23.

The volunteers would welcome your support and ideas. If you feel you might wish to contribute in any way to the volunteer program, call the middle school office, at 824-3596.

By OLIVE R. DAVIS

Esther Davis has returned home after three weeks visit in Florida. She went to attend the wedding of her granddaughter, Diane Nowlin, of Summerfield, Fla. It was a beautiful wedding and the bride was radiant. The groom was a handsome groom. They went to Colorado and to Hawaii on their honeymoon.

Others attending from Maine were Patricia Tibbetts and children, Jackie and Neil, also, Jerry Shorey. Jackie was a bridesmaid for her cousin. Esther stayed two weeks after the wedding, arriving home at 12:30 a.m. Sunday at the Lewiston Grayhound bus terminal, minus her luggage, and it hasn't been seen yet. While she was at her daughter's, a beautiful gray fox came out of the woods at the end of the lot, walked the length of the backyard and went back into the woods.

Lettie Brooks entertained the Rebecca Golden Link Circle at her farm on Curtis Hill. There were nine present. After a potluck dinner the business meeting was carried out. It was very foggy on the hill so they missed the view from the farm.

Tuesday, Sept. 13, Lettie Brooks entertained the Eleanor Forbes Goodwill Society at her home on Curtis Hill. They held their regular meeting after enjoying a potluck dinner there.

Those who attended Franklin Grange Monday, Sept. 19, were Mr. and Mrs. Richard Felt, Mr. and Mrs. Carl Brooks, Olive Davis, Lucille Robbins and Florence Gustafson.

Jeff Mills and Mrs. Ida Luther, State Representatives, were in the neighborhood to get acquainted with the people before election which is coming right along in November. It's nice to get acquainted with the Representatives before voting comes up.

Lettie Brooks has been up several times to help me since I fell. I sure appreciate her kindness to me.

Esther Davis took dinner with me Tuesday. Its good to have her back from her trip.

Our deep sympathy for Avis Stillhorn in the loss of her husband this last week; we wish to convey sympathy also to the children. It is always a rough time for all.

Franklin Grange will meet on Oct. 3 for Golden Sheaf night. The Golden Sheaf members will fill the chairs. There will be a tasting party. Pomona Grange will meet with a supper before the meeting on Oct. 4 at Bryant Pond.

Harold Tyler has returned home from the Maine Medical Center.

Sympathy is extended to Lawrence Jordan in the loss of his wife, Anne. Mr. and Mrs. James Cobb have returned home from a trip to Frankfurt, Germany. They visited both sons, James and Lewellyn, who are stationed there. They also visited the Black Forest, the Rhine River and enjoyed window shopping.

Verna Swan and Clara Whitman visited their nephew and wife, Gilbert and Mary Taylor, and family at Strong. Bob Hoyt and friend, Jay, were guests at his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Ken Hoyt, a couple of days.

INDUSTRIAL MANAGERS MEET

The first regular meeting of the Western Maine Industrial Management Club will be held at the Fall Line Restaurant, at Sunday River Ski Resort, on Oct. 3. The agenda is as follows: 5:30-6:30, social hour; 6:30-7:30, dinner; 7:30-8:30, program and meeting. The guest speaker will be Jennifer Vachon, vice president of member services for the Maine Chamber of Commerce.

The Traveler
James Diller Freeman

He has put on invisibility
Dear Lord, I can not see
But this I know,
Although the road ascends,
And passes from my sight
That there will be no night
That you will take him gently by the hand
And lead him on
Along the road of life that never ends
And he will find it is not death, but dawn.
I do not doubt that you are there as here,
And you will hold him dear.
Our life did not begin with birth,
It is not of the earth;
And this that we call death, it is no more
Than the opening & closing of a door—
And in your house how many rooms must be
Beyond this one where we rest momentarily
Dear Lord, I thank you for the faith that feeds
The love that knows it cannot lose its own.
The love that looks through the shadows,
And sees that you and he and I are ever one!

Recent advances in the lively art of conversation.

We've always believed that the world would be a better place if people spent more time talking to each other. So we have some ways to help.

Speak sooner.

When you have something to say, why wait any longer than you have to?

With Speed Calling from Contel you don't have to waste precious time dialing seven long digits. You touch one number and your call goes through.

Why leave anybody out of the conversation?

You know how it is. Sometimes you have two people you can't wait to talk to. With Three-way Calling you can talk to both of them at the same time.

Don't miss anything.

Sometimes other people can't wait to talk to you. There's really no reason to miss talking to them just because you don't happen to be home. With Call Forwarding from Contel you can forward your calls to the place you're going to be.

Let someone else get a word in edgewise.

You know what it feels like when you call someone and the line's busy. With Call Waiting this doesn't have to happen to people who call you. If you're on the phone and someone calls, you hear a little beep. And you can interrupt your call and see who else wants to talk.

We can't wait to talk to you.

Already you're probably thinking how some of these features can fit nicely into your conversations. If you'd like to talk about them or ask some questions, give us a call. We're all ears.

JO AND ROMEO BAKER stand proudly in front of their new art gallery. The two Newry artists provide a full range of art and framing services.

This is your Chamber of Commerce

Each week, this column will spotlight a different member of the Bethel Area Chamber of Commerce. The purpose is to give some understanding about the various fields of endeavor of the Chamber members.

Baker's Art Gallery and Frame Centre is located on the Sunday River Road, just past the Covered Bridge, in Newry. Romeo and Jo Baker operate a unique business that combines their talents and makes use of the beautiful setting of their home. The business specializes in custom and conservation framing and displays paintings by Romeo and Jo. The art gallery is presently open by appointment. Romeo and Jo are both painters. Romeo was a purchase prize winner at the Norway Art Show.

The business, open since January 1987, will expand this fall into a spacious new building that will contain the gallery, woodworking shop and a retail store for frames. The expanded space will allow the Bakers to begin a new program of week-long and weekend art seminars next summer. This facet of the operation may start off with several Christmas craft workshops this fall, with details to be publicized in the near future.

THIS WEEK AT THE Moses Mason House

All members and friends of the Bethel Historical Society are reminded that the next monthly meeting will be Oct. 6, in the meeting room of the Dr. Moses Mason House, beginning at 7:30 p.m. This will be the annual "What's It?" meeting, and anyone with an unusual item from the past is encouraged to bring it to share with the group.

Following the "What's It?" portion of the meeting, Barbara Herrick Brown will make a presentation on the history of Clark Street, one of Bethel's shortest streets, but also one of the oldest avenues, dating back to the 1860s. This portion of the program is another installment in the Bethel Historical Society's plan to cover the entire town of Bethel, street by street, road by road. Anyone with memories, photographs and/or artifacts relating to Clark Street is urged to call Mrs. Brown, at 824-2080, or the Society office, at 824-2908.

Oct. 12 is Homecoming Weekend at the Dr. Moses Mason House Museum. Tours of the house will be conducted from 1 to 3 p.m. both afternoons. The house will be decorated with harvest items. Society Director Stanley R. Howe will make a slide presentation on the history of Gould Academy on Sunday, beginning at 1 p.m. Student visitors to the Dr. Moses Mason House this week included the 4th-graders from Crescent Park. Allan Fraser, a retired logger, discussed logging in a bygone era and showed some of his tools.

The Bethel Historical Society has received from Director Howe a video, "In the Public Interest: The Civilian Conservation Corps in Maine." This has been added to the Society's video collection.

The Daughters of the American Revolution, Amaranth Chapter, will officially mark the grave of the Revolutionary War soldier Simeon Sanborn (1759-1832) at Middle Intervale Cemetery, this Saturday, Oct. 1, beginning at 2 p.m. Also in attendance will be members of the Maine Society, Sons of the American Revolution as well as Sanborn descendants. Following the ceremony, tours of the historic Middle Intervale Meeting House will be conducted. Anyone wishing to attend this ceremony is cordially invited to do so. Simeon Sanborn served in various companies between 1776 and 1779 and saw service at Valley Forge.

LOOKING BACKWARD

10 Years Ago: "The Base Camp," a combination restaurant and lounge at the base of Sunday River skway, was destroyed by fire. Over 250 alumni returned to the Gould campus for the reunion weekend. It was decided to form a society to preserve and govern the Middle Intervale Meeting House—the town's oldest religious structure. The Bethel Health Council, represented by Shirley Powell, outlined its expansion plans to the Bethel Rotary Club. Bethel products were on display at the State House through the efforts of the Greater Bethel Chamber of Commerce.

Agnes Gray School

By MARTA CLEMENTS

Our annual open house was well attended this past Thursday. Mr. Koch welcomed everyone and then introduced Mr. Burke and his chorus, who presented two songs. Chorus members singing were: Tovah Everett, Faith Lovejoy, Amanda Herrick, Mandy Blake, Maris Herrick, Kim Kangas, Candace Campbell, Jeannine Dembski, Erin Doughty, Amy Hill, Carrie Hammond, Alicia Coolidge and Emily Cole. Mr. Koch then introduced staff members and talked briefly about our upcoming fundraiser to benefit our playground project. Parents and teachers then met in individual classrooms to discuss what is going on at each grade level. Refreshments were enjoyed in the library.

On Thursday, Sept. 23, the first official volunteer meeting will be held. This will be at 7 p.m. in the library and refreshments will also be enjoyed. Mr. Mark O'terson, who is our district's volunteer coordinator, will be present to find out how our program works and to see if he can be of assistance to us. Mrs. Michelle Blake is our parent volunteer coordinator. Please call Mrs. Blake, or any of us at school, if you have any questions about our program. We are looking forward to meeting old and new faces Thursday night.

Classroom projects currently in progress are: the Kindergarten children are learning to clearly state their names, addresses and phone numbers so they will be prepared in case of emergencies.

The 1st-graders have been studying apples in several areas of the curriculum. They dissected an apple to learn about its parts. They tasted slices of apples with peanut butter and raisins. They have done apple tree art and science by creating an apple-shaped booklet depicting the apple tree as it looks at each season of the year. And, on Oct. 6 the Kindergarten and 1st Grade are going to visit Colonial Orchards to get a first-hand look at how apples grow, get picked and are packaged to sell. They will also get to see how cider is made. Did you know that Johnny Appleseed's birthday is Sept. 26? The 1st-graders know!

The 2nd-graders have completed their neighborhood walks around West Paris and are now in the process of mapping what they saw. Eric Smith is the current student of the week. He will be featured in many of the 2nd-graders' activities all week long.

Grade 3 is featuring "Jack and the Beanstalk" this week. Beans have been planted. Will there be a giant too? The 4th-graders are trying to earn the right to have a pizza party. They have to master 100 addition facts in three minutes. They hope to accomplish this feat by late-October.

The 5th-graders, who were snapping photos during the first two weeks of school, created a bulletin board in time for open house. There were several candid shots on display in the downstairs hallway.

A reading assignment for one 6th-grade reading group extended into a science lesson for the whole class. Does clay float? How much water is displaced? Each student made a clay boat that could float.

Mrs. Verkuille's students released helium-filled balloons this week after reading and writing about hot air balloons.

David Coy is writing great stories on the computer with Mrs. Gamble as part of his speech/language class.

Sales are already in progress for our first major fundraiser for our playground project. The chocolate bars are delicious and the mugs make great gifts!

DEFENSIVE DRIVING COURSE
A defensive driving course is scheduled for Bethel in October. Classes will be held at Telstar High School on Monday and Wednesday evenings, Oct. 17, 19, 24, and 26.

Instructor Eddy Naples said that those completing the course will receive a five point credit on their driving record. Does that mean they will be in advance at Bethel Adult Education. Further information is available by calling 824-2717.

The defensive driving course covers accident-avoidance techniques which are essential for everyday driving situations. The course includes films, classroom discussion and lectures.

This course, which is open to the public, is sponsored by the Bethel Adult Education and the Maine Highway Safety Commission.

Prayer to the Holy Spirit

On Holy Spirit, thou who art all knowing, who brightens every path that I may reach thy idea, thou who givest me this divine gift of forgiving and forgetting wrongs done to me and who in every instant of my life art with me, I'd like in this short dialogue to affirm my gratitude for all your blessings and to reaffirm once again that I never want to part from thee though the illusion of material things abound.

My desire is to be with thee and all my loved ones in perpetual grace. Thank you for your mercy on me and mine. (Persons should pray 3 consecutive days without revealing position. Within three days grace will be attained regardless of how difficult the petition may be.) Grateful for grace attained! C.A.S.

Songo Pond

By ALICE KIMBALL

Mr. and Mrs. Waldo Bickford, of Monmouth, were callers of her sister, Mrs. Christine Kimball, and Jimmy last Saturday. Later the Kimballs called on Mr. and Mrs. Joe Young at their summer cottage in Bryant Pond.

A white cat, evidently someone's pet, has been hanging around cottages at the lower end of the pond. For more information call 824-2626.

Best wishes to Mrs. Alice Wardwell, of South Albany, who underwent surgery at the Rumford Community Hospital on Thursday.

Mrs. Christine Kimball and friends were shopping in Gorham-Berlin, N.H. Thursday.

I spent Sunday to Wednesday with Ethel's family in Otisfield.

Mrs. Iva Fox, of Monmouth, spent the day Friday with her mother, Mrs. Christine Kimball, and Jimmy.

Mrs. Muriel Kimball, daughter, Sharon, and husband, of South Waterford, were recent callers of the Bill Bancrofts.

Don't complain about the weather. It will find a way to get even.

We all make mistakes—but hopefully we don't make the same mistake twice. I'd like to apologize for the letter that went home earlier this year, asking parents to provide personal information regarding finances, etc. This was a district-wide letter designed to help generate additional funds for the Chapter One program, but was very insensitive to our families. Please accept my apologies. David W. Murphy, Principal.

From inside the classroom: Kindergarten—Mrs. Gamble: This week the Kindergarten classes have been studying their five senses: touch, hearing, sight, taste and smell. We have felt, looked at, heard, tasted and smelled many different things and learned how we gather information through our senses. It has been both interesting and fun to learn this way!

The Kindergarten students have also made a color book. It contains works, in each of the primary colors, that each child created. They have spent some very exciting and enjoyable days learning about these colors and mixing the colors to see the results.

Grade 1—Mrs. Gaudreau: The 1st-graders have been listening to bear and teddy bear stories. They have made bear booklets. Our hall bulletin board shows a teddy bear parade. It has football bears, sheriff bears, cowboy bears, a cheerleader bear, panda bears and bears in bathing suits. Each child decorated one of these bears. Our final activity was the "Teddy Bear Show." Blue ribbons were awarded in many categories.

Grade 3—Miss Morin: There will be an organizational meeting of 3rd-grade parents to discuss future fund-raising projects on Oct. 5, at 7 p.m., in the 3rd-grade room. The parents' goal is to raise enough money over the next three years to cover the cost of 6th-grade graduation and a possible class trip.

Please come and lend your support to this project and bring along any fundraising ideas that you may have. If you are unable to attend, but would like to help in any way, please feel free to call Elton and Christine Cole at 665-2135.

Resource Room—Mrs. Caddigan: On Thursday, Sept. 29, the Resource Room students and interested parents, will be going apple picking at Abbotts Orchard, followed by a trip to "Maine Apple Growers" in Buckfield. We are looking forward to our exciting trip!

Our "I am special" projects are so much fun! The mobiles hanging in the Resource Room are just wonderful! Two "don't miss" opportunities for SAD #44 families:

Weatherization supplies—free. $75 worth of free weatherization supplies are yours for attending the Energy Conservation workshop Oct. 4 and 11 at Telstar. 6:30-9:30 p.m. Each household attending will receive vouchers for weatherization supplies redeemable at local building supply stores.

Appletalkers at your fingertips. Want to know more about Appletalkers? Linda Davis is teaching a course on Monday nights on the finer points of this popular Apple program. If you have a basic knowledge of how to run your Apple, this course will go into depth on word processing, spreadsheets and data base functions. It started Monday.

County Democrats meet in Buckfield

The Oxford County Democratic Committee met Sept. 22 in Buckfield following a dinner held in honor of legislative candidate Richard Adams.

Attorney General James Tierney, Democratic Party Chairman Rick Barton, and 2nd District Congressional candidate Ken Hayes were in attendance, as were Oxford County legislative candidates Rep. Jeff Mills, Sen. Ed Erwin, Rep. Phyllis Erwin, Ida Luther, Conrad Heeschen, and county commissioner candidate Ginger Kelly.

Ken Hayes spoke following the dinner. He addressed three issues he considers of critical importance to the future of Maine and the nation: environmental concerns, particularly waste disposal; illiteracy, and his goal of reducing adult illiteracy nationwide by 1 percent a year over 10 years; and alcohol and drug abuse, for which he proposed a commission to study the effects on the nation's health of television advertising of alcohol. He concluded with the theme of investment in our society to insure quality jobs, a first-rate educational system, comprehensive health care, a clean environment, and shelter for the homeless.

Atty. Gen'l Tierney, who is head of the Dukakis for President campaign in Maine, had participated in a press conference in Boston earlier in the day on behalf of Gov. Dukakis. He offered a number of facts concerning the record of the Reagan-Bush administration in the area of law enforcement. Mr. Tierney said that during the past eight years the use of drugs in the U.S. has increased, that the amount of drugs has increased and the price has dropped. He highlighted the lack of interdiction efforts at the federal level, the connection of the Reagan-Bush administration and the Bush campaign to Noriega in Panama and officials in the Bahamas associated with drugs, and the cut in federal funds for law enforcement.

Mr. Tierney said that prison furlough programs, such as the Massachusetts program criticized by the Bush campaign, exist in 40 states and in the federal prison system, and that Ronald Reagan, while governor of California, had such a program. Concluding with the subject of ethics in government, the attorney general referred to the 110 officials in the Reagan-Bush administration who have left office in disgrace, noting that in the Dukakis administration there will be no need for an Ethics Office, such as that proposed by Bush, as the Ethics Office will be the Oval Office.

Democratic Party Chairman Rick Barton described Dukakis as "a superb public official" who believes that the presidency can make a tremendous difference in the lives of the American people. He predicted a very close race nationally, and in Maine.

County Democratic Chairman Jeff Mills concluded the evening with a brief business meeting. India Haynes, of Waterford, was elected secretary, replacing Pauline Gaudreau, of Rumford, who has resigned. Warren Richardson, of Lovell, will chair the preparations for the booth at the Fryeburg Fair. The next county committee meeting will be Oct. 18, in Rumford, following a dinner honoring Sen. Erwin.

ART EXHIBIT OPENS AT GOULD

The art exhibit coming to the James B. Owen Gallery, on the Gould Academy campus will feature the work of Gould art students in the classes of 1978-80 who have seriously pursued art after graduating. A number of local artists are among the exhibitors. The show will run from Sept. 30 through Nov. 4. An opening reception will take place, appropriately enough, during Alumni Weekend, on Friday, Sept. 30, 7-9 p.m. It is open to the public.

The artists have chosen a wide range of careers after Gould, from jewelry making, to graphic arts, to magazine layout and design, with some still studying art in college. Local artists' works will include the collages of Sarah Shepley '78 of Bethel; sculpture of Brett Bachelder of Newry; '81-'83 Gould Summer School; pottery of Mike Greifendorf '85 of Rangeley; and photography of Chessel McGee '84 of Bethel. Also featured will be works of Edna Isham '84 and Marybeth Isham '85 of Albany and Meg Ford '87 of Bethel.

D.A.R. to mark grave of Simeon Sanborn

Members of Amarscoggin Chapter of the Daughters of the American Revolution will officially mark the grave of Simeon Sanborn (1759-1832) at Middle Intervale Cemetery, Bethel, in a ceremony to be held on Saturday, Oct. 1, at 2 p.m. Several descendants from the Daughters of the American Revolution and the Maine Society, Sons of the American Revolution as well as descendants are expected to be present. Acquisition of the marker has been made possible through a donation from a Sanborn descendant, Mrs. Henry Pusey, of the Bill of Rights Chapter, Daughters of the American Revolution, Woodbridge, Va. Simeon Sanborn was born July 5, 1759 and was baptized at Hampton Falls, N.H. July 8, 1759. Early in life he moved to Standish with his father. He married Hannah War (1759-1850) and she is buried beside him in the cemetery at Middle Intervale. Sanborn was one of the first settlers in Greenwood and by 1805 he owned a sawmill there, where boards and shingles for many of the early houses were sawed. He later sold his mill to Amos Richardson and moved to Bethel where he spent the remainder of his days. He was the father of nine children. During the American Revolution, Sanborn served in various capacities between 1776 and 1778; he also saw service at Valley Forge. Preceding the ceremony, a luncheon will be held at the Bethel Inn for members and guests of the Maine Society, Sons of the American Revolution and Amarscoggin Chapter, Daughters of the American Revolution beginning at noon. Tours of the historic Middle Intervale Meeting House (1816) will be conducted following the marker ceremony. Anyone wishing further details should call the chairman of local arrangements, Stanley R. Howe, at 824-2508.

Mrs. Grace Nelson and Mrs. Edith Holt went to North Raymond Thursday and visited Mrs. Olive Morrell. They had a pleasant day. Robert Brown, of Albany, did some work for Brenda Files, Friday. ### BE GOOD TO YOUR BACK Healthy back maintenance is the subject of a four-week course starting Oct. 4 at Telstar High School sponsored by SAD #44 Adult and Community Education.

The class is designed for those who would like to learn and practice a program of exercises to strengthen muscles that affect the back. More than 80 percent of all cases of lower back pain are caused by weak or tense muscles. Weak abdominal and hamstring muscles often cause an imbalance of strength which can bring on pain following such routine activities as picking up a child or pushing a lawnmower.

Debbie Ferguson will be the instructor for the course using materials developed for the "Y's Way to a Healthy Back" and workshops Ms. Ferguson presented during her graduate program in physical education and exercise physiology at the University of North Carolina. She will be using a series of tests to measure strength and flexibility of key muscle groups to determine each participant's strength and flexibility. The exercises in the program are designed to progress over a four-week period on a daily basis, even though the class will only meet once during the week. The exercises include relaxation, flexibility and strengthening activities.

Ms. Ferguson, who is also teaching an exercise class at the Woodstock School for SAD #44 Adult and Community Education, is a graduate of Longwood College in Farmville, Va., and holds an MA from the University of North Carolina at Chapel Hill. While at UNC, she served as a teaching assistant and worked in several executive fitness programs conducting pre- and post-testing programs and developing exercise prescriptions. She has also worked as an exercise physiologist for Northern Telecom conducting employee fitness appraisals. She has been a presenter at health promotion and wellness conferences and is a member of numerous fitness and exercise associations. To enroll for the healthy back maintenance course, call the Adult and Community Education office, 824-2780.

Crescent Park weekly

By ALEX GILLIES

S.R.A. testing has begun. We are trying to do our best.

After school we have a chance to play and be coached in soccer. Miss Dunham and Mr. Hartford are coaching it. So many people participated that they had to split them into two groups.

Mary Jo Reed and Amanda Sysko have hurt their ankles and are on crutches. On Tuesday a person from the Maine State Aquarium is coming to tell us about marine life. We are getting worksheets about what he will be telling us.

We are having an open house on Wednesday. We are preparing stories, drawings and other pieces of work to show the parents. There is also a book fair open.

The first project of the year has been assigned. It is a social studies project. We are supposed to do a map and have it relate to art.

Well, that's all for this week. So long.

Waterfowl season set

Fish and Wildlife Commissioner William Vail and the Fish and Wildlife Advisory Council met in Augusta Sept. 9 to set the 1988 Maine waterfowl hunting seasons.

1988 Maine Waterfowl Hunting is as follows:

Regular duck season: North Zone (Wildlife Management Units 1, 2, 3, 4 and 5—interior and northern portions of the state)—split season: Oct. 10-29 and Nov. 10-19; South Zone (WUMUs 6, 7 and 8—coastal portions of the state)—split season: Oct. 10-22 and Dec. 1-17. Daily limit: three ducks, not to include more than one black duck, two wood ducks and one mallard, one pintail or two redheads. No open season on canvasback ducks.

There will be no "bonus" seasons on teal or scaup this year.

Sea ducks: Oct. 10 to Jan. 20. Daily limit—seven.

Mergansers: Season same as regular duck season. Daily limit—five. Shooting hours: Sunrise to sunset, including opening day.

Canada geese: Open season—Oct. 1 to Dec. 9. Daily limit—Three.

Snow geese: Open season—Oct. 1 to Dec. 23. Daily limit—four.

Brant: Open season—Oct. 1 to Nov. 19. Daily limit—two.

Falconry seasons: North Zone, Oct. 6-9, Oct. 30-Nov. 9 and Nov. 20-Jan. 20; South Zone, Oct. 6-9, Oct. 23-Nov. 30, Dec. 18-Jan. 20.

Pamphlets containing full details of the 1988 waterfowl hunting regulations will be available statewide from license agents and department offices in late September or early October.

In other business, the Council voted to reject proposals to reduce the size of outboard motors at Long Pond on Mount Desert Island; Parker Pond in Mount Vernon and Poverty Pond (Silver Lake) in Newfield, as it was felt they represented social problems which could be best handled by better compliance with the current watercraft regulations. Councilors also were presented with information on parcels of land in Chester-ville and Eagle Lake to consider for future purchase with the Habitat Acquisition Fund.

STEP courses offered to SAD #44 parents

The SAD #44 Adult and Community Education program will again offer courses designed to assist parents in communicating with their children.

Two courses are on the fall schedule; including STEP (Systematic Training for Effective Parenting) and STEP-Teen, both are nationally known programs which have helped thousands of families. Lorrie Hoeh will be the facilitator for both programs. She used both programs during her years as a guidance counselor and taught both last year through SAD #44 Adult Education.

According to Cathy Newell, director of SAD #44 Adult and Community Education, participants in last year's sessions gave the program excellent reviews and reported learning concrete skills to enhance their family life.

STEP will be offered on Thursday mornings from 9:15-11:15 at the Casco Bank meeting room on Main Street in Bethel, for eight weeks, starting Sept. 29. STEP-Teen will be held on Tuesday nights at Telstar from 7-9 starting on Sept. 27. The cost of the program is $15 per family which covers the cost of the book. Scholarships are available.

Additional STEP or STEP-Teen sessions may be scheduled at different locations, such as Andover or Woodstock, or at alternate times of day. Those interested in enrolling in the scheduled courses or in suggesting a different time or place should call the SAD #44 Adult and Community Education office, 824-2780.

From the Bethel Area Chamber of Commerce

An emergency Board of Directors meeting was held last Thursday, Sept. 22, to discuss business held over from the Sept. 8 meeting.

A tentative budget for the Bethel Area Reservation Service was presented. Sylvia Clanton, of Bethel, has been hired to be the full-time reservationist for BARS. Welcome, Sylvia. The chamber will be purchasing a computer to ease operations of BARS and to help with other chamber functions. The profits from the 1987-88 BARS activity is making this possible.

Discussion of a membership campaign brought about some ideas on how to approach prospective members. Related to this, a possible change of name for the chamber was discussed. If anyone has any good ideas on a new name that would still give us some geographical identity, let us know.

A progress report on the Big E was given. Our attendance under the banner of "The Western Mountains and Lakes Region of Maine" has been very well received. We have disseminated a lot of written information and answered a lot of questions. Videos of the wood products industry, the Bethel Inn, both Sunday River and Mt. Abram skiways and the Oxford Hills have also been well-received. This project is being supported by the sale of the Maine Woodsman's Weatherstick. Many thanks to Rick and Ellen Whitney, of Maine Line Products, and Steve Wight, of the Sunday River Inn—our suppliers.
